Topic

Technical Intern Training is a status of residence for receiving training, but Specified Skilled Worker is a status of residence for working.

The Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence allows you to work in Japan for a total of five years. You cannot bring family members with you, but you receive the same monetary salary that a Japanese person would. You can also take Japanese language classes and receive various forms of support from your company.

The Specified Skilled Worker (ii) status has no five-year limit, and you can bring family members with you.

What Should I Do So I Can Work?

In order to work under a Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence, you need to pass a Japanese language test and a skills proficiency test. (You do not need to pass these tests if you have satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training (ii). However, to work in a different field, you need to pass a skills proficiency test in the field in which you wish to work.) Afterward, if you sign a contract with a company, you can apply for your Specified Skilled Worker status of residence.

◆ The process of getting a job

People who are outside Japan Pass a Japanese language test and a skills proficiency test. (People who have satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training do not need to take any tests.) Step 2 Sign a contract with a company. Step 3 Submit a status of residence application to Immigration. Step 4 Work.

Note: This applies if you will be working in a field related to the job for which you received Technical Intern Training.

3 Getting Company Support (Specified Skilled Worker (i))

Foreign nationals working under a Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence can receive various forms of support from their company for living and working in Japan. (If the company cannot provide support, a registered support organization can provide it at the company's request.) You can receive the following 10 forms of support from your company.

1

Receiving an explanation from your company before you obtain the status of residence

If you sign a contract with a company, you can get a detailed explanation of your contract and job before you submit your status of residence application.

Picking you up when you arrive in Japan and dropping you off when you leave Japan to return to your home country

When you arrive in Japan, someone from the company will pick you up at the airport and take you to the company or your home. Additionally, when you return to your home country, someone from the company will accompany you as far as the security check at the airport.

Helping you prepare the house you will live in and sign contracts for electricity and gas

Someone from the company will serve as a guarantor for the house you will live in, or the company will rent companyowned housing to you. Additionally, the company will assist you with setting up a bank account and signing contracts for your cell phone, electricity, and gas.

Receiving an orientation session on living in Japan

Someone from the company will teach you rules and etiquette for living in Japan. Additionally, they will teach you how to ride buses and trains and what to do if an earthquake occurs.

Accompanying you to city hall and other offices for various procedures

Someone from the company will accompany you while you carry out city hall procedures, tax procedures, and so on. Additionally, they will help you fill out the paperwork needed for those procedures.

Helping you study Japanese

Someone from the company will help you find a school where you can study Japanese.

7

Holding meetings to solve your problems and complaints

They will provide advice and respond to questions in your native language whenever a problem arises.

8

Help you communicate with Japanese people

Someone from the company will provide information on attending nearby festivals and will provide opportunities for you to talk to the Japanese people in your area.

Helping you switch jobs (if the company intends to lay you off)

The company will help you look for your next job if they intend to lay you off.

Holding meetings (more than once every three months)

The company's manager in charge of providing support will periodically hold a meeting with you. They can answer your questions if you have problems with your job.

Topic

Companies are required to provide foreign nationals with these 10 forms of support. If you feel that you haven't received proper support from your company, please contact the nearest Immigration office.

How to Obtain the Specified Skilled Worker Status of Residence

1 Proficiency Tests

In order to work under a Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence, you need to pass a Japanese language test and a skills proficiency test. (You do not need to pass these tests if you have satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training (ii). However, to work in a different field, you need to pass a skills proficiency test in the field in which you wish to work.) Taking these tests costs money. You can check the test's website to find out what kinds of questions are on it. For information on textbooks and sample questions, see the website. Test questions related to several fields are provided here for reference.

2 Switching from Another Status of Residence

You do not need to pass a test if you have satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training (ii). However, to work in a different field, you need to pass a skills proficiency test in the field in which you want to work.

You can sign a contract with a company and submit a status of residence application to Immigration.

If you have a different status of residence (e.g., a student visa), you need to take and pass a test.

3 Signing a Contract with a Company

In order to sign a contract with a company, you need to take and pass an employment interview.

If you are not in Japan, the employment interview can be conducted directly with the company or through an employment placement company.

If you are in Japan, there is a government agency called Hello Work that provides employment placement services in Japan. Please contact Hello Work if you want to find a new job. You can contact any Hello Work location.

Frequently Asked Questions

♦ Questions Related to Status of Residence

- I am a Technical Intern Trainee, and I am currently doing my Technical Intern Training. Can I change my status of residence to Specified Skilled Worker?
- First you must complete your Technical Intern Training. If, for some particular reason, you become unable to continue your Technical Intern Training, then please consult with your supervisory organization or the Organization for Technical Intern Training.
- I have previously lived in Japan as a Technical Intern Trainee. Can I go to Japan as a Specified Skilled Worker?
- If you have satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training (ii), then you can work in Japan without having to take a test. However, if you intend to work in a field other than the one in which you did your Technical Intern Training, then you will have to take a skills proficiency test for the field in which you want to work.
- If I switch my status of residence from a Student status of residence to a Specified Skilled Worker status of residence, what happens to the status of residence of my family members? Would my family members be required to return to their home country?
- You cannot bring family members with you if you are a Specified Skilled Worker (i). However, a family member such as a spouse or a child is already living in Japan with a Dependent status of residence, then they might be allowed to change their status of residence. For more details, please contact the nearest Immigration office.

- In order to work under the Specified Skilled Worker status of residence, are there any rules regarding educational background, such as graduation from university or vocational college?
- A If you pass a proficiency test or satisfactorily complete Technical Intern Training (ii) or (iii), no particular educational background is required. In order to work as a Specified Skilled Worker, you must be at least 18 years of age.
- After I have begun working under a Specified Skilled Worker status of residence, can I switch to working at a different company?
- A If you are engaged in employment-seeking activities, you can at least remain in Japan for the duration of your status of residence, and if your new job is in the same field, you can work at a different company without taking a proficiency test. However, if, without a particular reason, you go three months or longer without engaging in activities related to your Specified Skilled Worker status of residence for example, if you go three months or longer without seeking employment then your status of residence might be rescinded.
- Q6 | Can I drive an automobile?
- If you have a driver's license, then you can drive an automobile. Various types of information related to life in Japan can be obtained at the orientation session on living in Japan that your company will offer. Important information about living and working in Japan is also provided in the Guidebook on Living and Working.

- Can I obtain Permission to Engage in Activity Other Than That Permitted under the Status of Residence Previously Granted?
- You cannot obtain Permission to Engage in Activity Other Than That Permitted under the Status of Residence Previously Granted in order to work a side job.
- Can I obtain a Permanent Resident status of residence?
- The maximum length of time you can stay in Japan under the Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence is five years. For that reason, it is difficult to switch to a Permanent Resident status of residence.

Questions Related to Proficiency Tests

- Not many proficiency tests are offered in my own country. Can I first go to Japan and then take a proficiency test?
- As of April 2020, it is possible to come to Japan with a Temporary Visitor status of residence in order to take proficiency tests, so you can take proficiency tests in Japan.
- Q10 Is there a limit to how many times I can take a proficiency test?
  - A There is no limit to how many times you can take a proficiency test, but taking a proficiency test costs money.
- I passed level N4 of the Japanese-Language Proficiency Test. Do I also need to pass the Japan Foundation Test for Basic Japanese?
  - You need to pass either test. In this instance, you do not need to pass the Japan Foundation Test for Basic Japanese. However, to work in the nursing care field, you need to pass the Nursing Care Japanese Language Evaluation Test in addition to one of the two aforementioned tests.

Q12

I want to work in a field that differs from my Technical Intern Training. Do I need to take a proficiency test?

A

If you satisfactorily completed Technical Intern Training (ii), then you don't have to take a Japanese language test. However, you need to take a proficiency test in the field in which you want to work.

Q13

Where can I find the schedule for skills proficiency tests and Japanese language tests?

A

Please check the website of the Ministry of Justice for notices regarding test schedules. (Website is in Japanese.)

Questions Related to Support

Q14

Who pays for the support I receive from my company?

A

Generally, your company pays for it. However, please contact the nearest Immigration office if it gets deducted from your salary.

Q15

What should I do if my company does not provide proper support?

A

If you are working under a Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence, your company is obligated to provide support, so please contact the nearest Immigration office if they do not.

Comments from People Working Under the Specified Skilled Worker Status of Residence

In this section, you can read comments by people actually working under the Specified Skilled Worker status of residence. Please use it for reference purposes.

Nursing Care Field

My desire to work as a care worker in Japan increased during the four years I spent as an EPA care worker candidate, and because I only failed the National Certified Care Worker Examination by seven points, I decided to try again.

I want to quickly pass the National Certified Care Worker Examination and become a teacher in Indonesia to teach people who aim to become nursing care workers in Japan about the benefits of nursing care.

Machine Parts and Tooling Field

The Japanese people are kind, and there are numerous company events, so both my work life and personal life are fulfilling.

I was filled with anxiety before I came to Japan, but senior employees and my boss trained me well, and I'm so glad now that they count on me.

Industrial Machinery Field

I had a lot of difficulties when I first came to Japan, but once I started working, I got stronger and realized that I was helping my family. Now that I'm used to my job, my next goal is to make good products more quickly.

I want to take the things I've learned about the Japanese way of thinking, etiquette, service, and so on back with me to Vietnam. I feel that I have been able to improve my skills and grow more than I expected since coming to Japan.

When I first came to Japan as a technical intern trainee, I had a difficult time learning how to work and live in Japan.

Since coming back to Japan, I have gotten used to Japanese culture and the way of doing things, and my lifestyle has become more relaxing.

Shipbuilding and Ship Machinery Field

I'm very fortunate to have had the opportunity to work as a technical intern trainee, as a shipbuilding worker, and now under a Specified Skilled Worker (i) status of residence. At the company where I work, I have experience as a trainee and a worker, and my job is easy now that I am used to my company and my welding duties.

I would like to work hard as a group organizer, teaching this job to trainees and workers at the worksite.

It is convenient with the dormitory located close to the company and a supermarket.
